Appendix   Links to the video version of this book

Word-for-word, the contents of this book, Human nature, worth, and civilization by Robert Dalling, have been narrated into some forty-hours of classroom video. Thanks go to two-dozen students who helped with narration. Links to the videos are given below in the order of topics that I cover in the course. Lists of all the videos in this Big History course, can be found at

Topic 1
Human senses and emotions. The steps that occur as we fall in love. See https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=Rz9WKD-3nDs.

Our innate emotions are happiness, sadness, fear, and disgust, and our social emotions are sympathy, pride, embarrassment, guilt, shame, and anger. We get angry only when we feel that have been wronged. You are born with these emotion. You don't have to be taught emotions, the reactions are innate. Every human being on the planet, past or present, shares the same emotions.

Topic 2
Kanzi is a Bonobo Chimpanzee who understands hundreds of spoken words. Kanzi tells us much about ourselves and how similar we are to other mammals. See “Kanzi, an ape of genius,” at https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=dBUHWoFnuB4&list=PLB4411A9C9B7CEEA.

Kanzi and Panbanisha also write, make stone tools, play musical instruments, and blow out candles on birthday cakes. This is seen in the NHK documentary “Kanzi II” but I can not find it online, so you might instead try NHK parts 1 to 4 at https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=TxcJSPHHFso.

https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=adXKAep3woY.

Expansion of business, and its social consequences. Topics include Industrialization, Lowell factories, women's rights, slavery, and civil rights. What was the Industrial Revolution? It meant that the number of tools and decorations in the home increased from twenty to two-hundred items, but social ties were reduced, we lost full control over our own lives, and there was an increase in injustice. A classroom summary of How the other half lives, by Jacob, A. Riis, which was published in 1890. This is a description of daily life for the first generations of wage-earners in New York City between the years 1820 and 1900, including the conflict between labor and capital. We find that the development of Big Government was a reluctant and late-in-coming response to the social consequences of our shift from working the family farm in socially connected villages to working for wages in the cities.

https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=MkcfUS4z_WU.

Topic 16
Democracy compared to authoritarian states.
Democracy is more than voting and free speech. It is firstly a blending of views that partially satisfies everyone. Democracy requires tolerance, participation, the right of dissent, an intelligent distrust of leadership, faith in fellow citizens not rulers, and the desire to compromise rather than suffer civil war. Authoritarian or single-party states outlaw alternative political parties and choose priorities, goals, and agendas without debate. This classroom summary of political culture includes descriptions of single party states and democratic states. An explanation is given for the reason that, after the departure of the European colonizers, India remained democratic and Africa remained authoritarian. See https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=G6ULRZJmioA.

Topic 17
Today’s business. Topics include corporations, Big Business, franchise, social health indicators and our priorities, U.S. worker wages peaked in 1972, wealth and income inequality, upper wealth grab in the U.S but not in Europe, tax cuts grow the national debt, infant mortality, health care, education, marketing of products and politicians and issues, and summaries of war, Ancient Athenian democracy, dictators, democratic peoples, and how community members exchange help. About the author

For twelve years, author Dr. Robert Dalling has taught a Big History course using this book along with the video version of this book, plus some additional chapters from his other book The Story of Us Humans, from Atoms to Today’s Civilization. To create the video version, he traveled to fifty nations to record 3D video of people and places, while relying on the kindness of strangers every few minutes. Links to the course-videos are at www.HumansimWeb.net.

The author’s Ph.D. is in physics, with an engineering minor involving fluid mechanics and nuclear engineering. He has presentations and publications in chaos, heat flow, laser spectroscopy, and relativistic quantum mechanics. He has a patent for a method of calculating the Lyapunov exponent, which determines the exponential rate of error growth in any system—for example, the weather. It was determined that you get only thirty-hours of meaningful weather prediction when three-significant-figures are measured in the initial conditions of temperature, pressure, and humidity and such. The author has also written Tour of undergraduate physics, which is a three-volume, 1350-page summary of undergraduate physics. The three volumes are 1) Workbook and Solutions Manual for Heat, Fluids, Sound, Light, Electricity and Magnetism 2) Workbook and Solutions Manual for Mechanics and 3) Workbook and Solutions Manual for Quantum Mechanics, Mathematical Physics, and Special Relativity

Previously, the author spent fifteen years as a nation-wide software company, providing bookkeeping and database software for retail stores that sell tractors. He wrote a 300-page manual of bookkeeping and accounting procedures for this software. To conduct this business, he traveled one-half-million miles through forty-eight states and learned how major corporations, franchises, and small businesses operate.

The author’s hobbies are teaching precious students, traveling our world, learning, and listening to music from around the world.
